

Wizards, Advisors and Websites, Oh My! Interactive Electronic Tools for Compliance Assistance

Description

An interactive web site tool has the potential to deliver targeted compliance assistance information to the regulated community. This session will discuss databases, wizards (or expert systems), interactive tutorials, and other means to deliver information to your web site users. If you're a regular Internet surfer, you've probably used these tools without being consciously aware of them. Let's get together, look at examples, and talk about how this technology can work for your needs.

Goals/Outcomes

To provide a basic understanding of Internet technologies; discuss why expert systems are different from other electronic tools; discuss how to plan for a successful project using electronic tools.

Key Questions

- ☐ What can interactive tools do - Yes, they do windows.
- ☐ What are the components of electronic tools - It's all ones and zeros.
- ☐ How to develop a successful tool - how to get started AND finish!

Presenter

Alex Botkin, Industry Analyst, CONSAD Research Corporation (alexbotkin@consad.com)